

CERTIFICATE and ASSESSMENT

This is to certify that Assoc. Prof. Klaudia Bednarova-Gibova, PhD. has successfully delivered the following lectures to students of translation and interpreting at the Department of Languages, Literatures and Cultures/Translation Section at the University of Coimbra, Portugal within the Erasmus+ exchange scheme on March 28-March 31, 2023:

1. Emotional competence and literary translation performance in the light of translation psychology;
2. Artificial intelligence and machine translation: new implications for translator training.

In the offered lectures, the scholar demonstrated her experience and admirable erudition in the selected progressive areas of translation studies, and motivated her studentship in terms of critical thinking and interactivity, not leaving connections between theory and practice aside. Such a balanced approach is certainly very much appreciated when considering contemporary trends in teaching translation and its current generational turn.

In addition, Klaudia Bednarova-Gibova, as a project leader of the KEGA research grant with a focus on innovative translation theory and practice based on blended learning has offered us stimulating research cooperation possibilities at the international level. At the same time, she has invited me and Prof. Jorge M. C. Almeida e Pinho, PhD., from our Translation Department to participate in the up-coming workshop dedicated to methods of teaching contemporary translation at the University of Presov, Slovakia to be held in the spring 2024, either onsite or online.

It was definitely a pleasure to welcome Assoc. Prof. Klaudia Bednarova-Gibova, PhD. to the University of Coimbra, Portugal as by her visit she clearly confirmed her status of the distinguished personality in the field of translation studies at the international level.

Cornelia Plag
Associate Professor
Erasmus+ Area Coordinator

Date: March 31st, 2023