OCA16. Anotácia výstupu v anglickom jazyku / Annotation of the output in English⁹ Rozsah do 200 slov / Range up to 200 words	Inter-war Slovakia was a strongly religious country even though the number of non-religious inhabitants was gradually rising. Several church periodicals were published here thanks to the support of church hierarchy and fund-raising campaigns. The most significant was a group of catholic periodicals. In 1918 – 1939; approximately sixty of them were published being not only addressed to believers but also to miscellaneous church associations and monastic orders. They were represented even in the east of Slovakia. One of them was St. Joseph's Association Gazette that was subtitled For the Support of Slovak Priest Youth of Redemptorists. It was issued every other month in the town of Stropkov. It was printed on 60-100 pages in the Printing Office of St. Elisabeth in the town of Košice. The members of the association were given copies for free. The magazine dealt mostly with religious situation and was apolitical. It also included various reports about life, informative articles with religious themes, poems, biographies of the saints and missionaries. The gazette tried to educate its members in religious way within catholic practices. The paper analyzes the selected content of the then Slovak regional church periodicals and evaluates its role in strengthening religiosity among the population of eastern Slovakia.

Kresťanské periodiká prispievali k zintenzívneniu kontaktov medzi veriacimi a predstaviteľmi kresťanskej cirkvi. Jednou zo základných úloh tlače bola aj podpora kresťanskej výchovy. / The paper emphasizes the role of the Slovak regional press also in the field of "spiritual" care for the population of the particularly highly religious environment of eastern Slovakia. Christian periodicals helped intensify contacts between believers and representatives of the Christian Church. One of the basic tasks of the press was to support Christian education.
