Are you passionate about the English language, global cultures, and literature? The Bachelor's programme in English Language and Anglophone Cultures offers you a dynamic and interdisciplinary education that combines language mastery with deep cultural and literary insight.

You will develop strong communication skills (B2-C1 CEFR), gain expertise in translation and interpreting, explore the history and contemporary realities of English-speaking countries, and learn to analyse literary and cultural texts and language critically. The programme fosters intercultural competence—essential for today's global world—and prepares you for both academic and professional success.

Whether you envision a future as a translator, editor, tour guide, cultural coordinator, media specialist, or continue on to a master's degree, this programme equips you with the tools to thrive in international and multicultural environments.
