

PROGRAM

16th DOCTORAL CONFERENCE COMPARATIVE RESEARCH AS A METHODOLOGICAL ISSUE

Conference objective:

The issue of interdisciplinary cooperation is increasingly coming to the fore in scientific research and its methodological platform. Social work as a social science discipline is one of those sciences which, in the context of the interdisciplinarity of social problems, necessarily draws on research findings from other areas. The scientific conference will be a platform for discussing the significance, importance, and methodological challenges of research comparison so that doctoral students can enter the process of comparison and interdisciplinarity of sciences at the beginning of their scientific careers.

The conference is held on

9:00 - 15:00
